

This next report comes in from George Harms (NJ), who hunted in Mongolia during August 2007:

I had a great opportunity to go to Mongolia with my very good friend Gary Hansen (CO) and Bryan Tyler, a guy that works for him; a very nice young man. We had a great time. We had a great hunt. The whole thing was arranged with Ankhaa through Vladimir Melnikov. Vladimir had another one of his guys that works for him, by the name of Vladimir Koshcheev, come along with us. Ankhaa did a great job organizing and locating some very nice animals for us. When I was hunting for my Hangay, Hurzgerel was the local guide who did a great job and I got my animal pretty much right away. I actually shot him the first day I was hunting. Then we went to a different area; a lot of traveling from one place to another.

This Hangay argali was taken in Mongolia by George Harms (NJ) during August 2007.

George Harms (NJ) took this fantastic Gobi argali in Mongolia during August 2007. George was hunting with Mongolei Reisen.

We hunted in the East Gobi Province near the China border, and I got a very nice Gobi argali. Undrah was my local guide. The first animal I went for, I had Mugi as my interpreter. Bolar was the interpreter for the second two animals. Adiya was the local outfitter for both Gary's Gobi and mine. We had a very, very good hunt. Then we went and got our Gobi ibex. That was to a totally different area. We were a little hurried because we didn't have a lot of time. We actually had a day and a half to hunt. We didn't see anything worth shooting the first day, but we were all able to get Gobi ibex the second day. We had a very good time.

I have enclosed a photo of the dinner and party the night before we departed. Everyone was a great help. It was a good hunt, we moved very fast. We traveled an awful lot. The weather was nice, a little cold and windy at times. We did have one day where there was a sandstorm. It was a really good deal. I really enjoyed being with Ankhaa and Vladimir, the interpreters and all the guides. A special thank you to Gary Hansen and Bryan Tyler for putting up with all the different things that took place. It was a great time!
