

It is always a pleasure to get a report from Giancarlo Boienti (Italy). We met for the first time on a Yakutia snow sheep hunt a few years ago, and as is the case so many times when we share hunting camps with new acquaintances, we became fast friends. Matter of fact, we have gone on to hunt the mountains together since then, and my wife and I visited with him and his wife in Italy last year. Anyway, this young man (who sure climbs the mountains better than I do) is working hard toward both his Ovis and Capra World Slams. He likes to do the toughest hunts, such as is the case with this report:

For my successful hunt I have to thank my local guide Atobek, and Vladimir Koscheev, the guide interpreter, and Profi-Hunt, who took care of me the entire trip. It was a fun, yet hard and frozen hunt. I lost the first day because of snow, but after four hunting days I got what I was looking for: a good 57" Marco Polo. What a population; I saw at least 1,500 sheep in one day!

Congratulations on a great ram, Giancarlo, and good luck on your next hunts.

Giancarlo Boienti (Italy) took this 57" Marco Polo ram on his October 2005 hunt in Tajikistan. He booked his hunt with Profi-Hunt and Vladimir Koscheev.
