

Vladim Gomzyakov (Russia) took this Altay argali from Mongolia in October 2006.

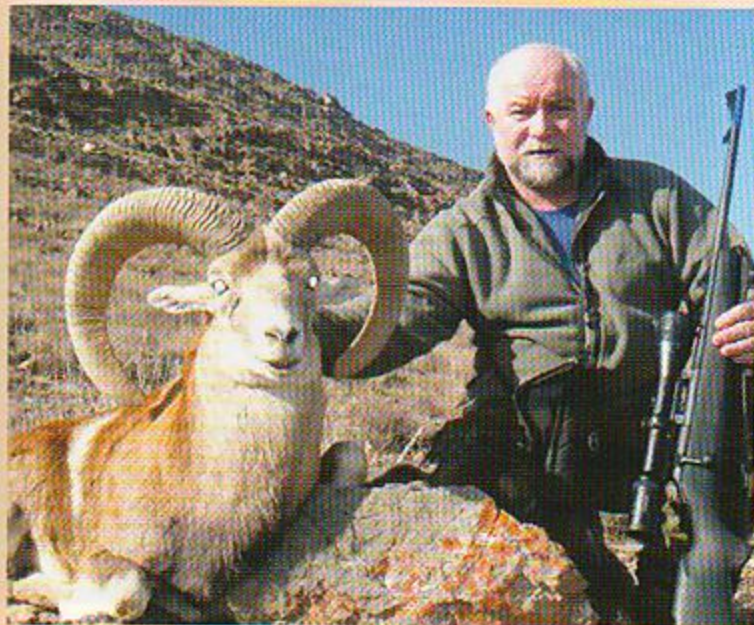

This fantastic Hangay argali from Mongolia was taken by Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia) in October 2010.

Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia, right) started sheep hunting with this August 2005 hunt in Siberia, Russia, where he collected a great Kamchatka snow sheep.

Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia) just joined GSCO and also sent all of his international hunting photos and forms. Vladim has 13 Ovis animals to his credit, and he completed his Ovis World Slam in December 2010 with a Hangay argali from Mongolia. One of Vadim's mountain hunts for sheep turned out to be an Altay argali from Mongolia in October 26, 2006. His first hunt for sheep occurred in the far east of Russia, in Siberia. That is where Vadim hunted and collected a Kamchatka snow sheep in August 2005. We have several more photos to share for Vadim in the Fall issue of OVIS.

This Esfahan mouflon was taken in Iran by Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia) in February 2009.

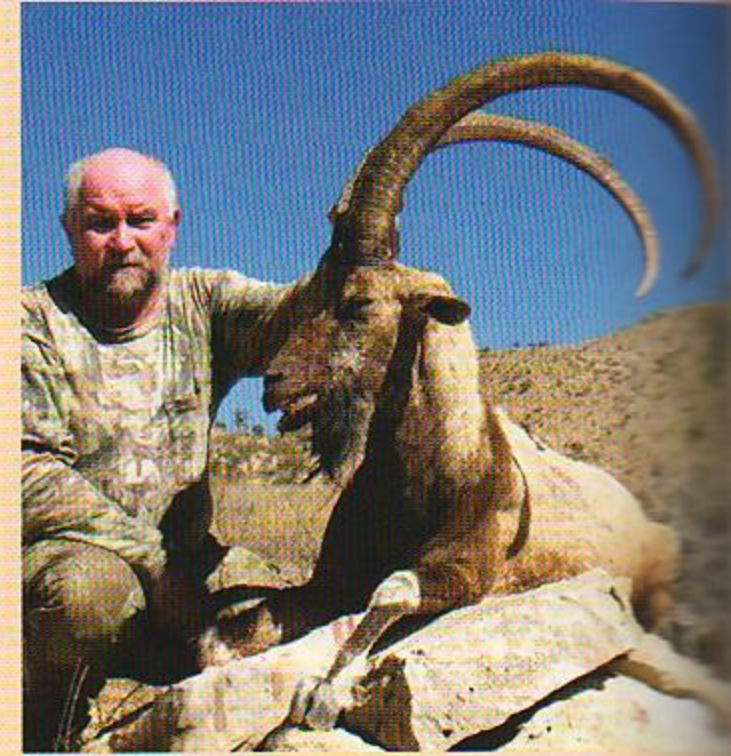

Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia) took this fantastic red sheep from Iran in March 2009.

Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia) took this Beceite ibex from Spain in November 2006.

Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia, right) scored with the Alpine ibex from Austria in September 2010.

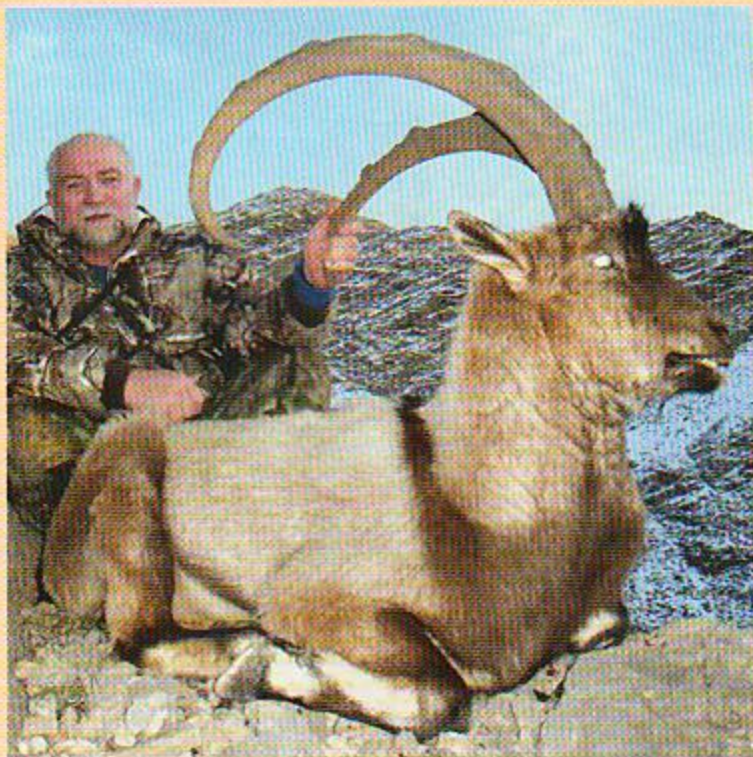

This Sindh ibex from Pakistan was taken by Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia) in February 2008.

Brand new life member of GSCO Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia) finally decided to share the fact that he has obtained the Ovis World Slam, Capra World Slam and is only a bighorn away from having the Grand Slam and Triple Slam. For this Milestone Feature, we want to recognize some of Vadim's Capra critters and then you can look for the rest in future issues of OVIS.

Vadim started going after the Capra species in November 2006 when he hunted in Spain and was able to collect a Gredos and Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia) hunted in Iran during February 2009 and was able to collect a Persian desert ibex.

This beautiful Altay ibex was taken by Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia) in October 2009.

Beceite ibex. After those first two ibex, he just couldn't stop thinking about these mountain-dwelling goats. So, in 2008 he was able to get a Sindh ibex and Kuban (Western) tur from Pakistan and Russia.

In 2009, he traveled to Iran to collect a Persian desert ibex and then on to Mongolia in October 2009, where Vadim took the Altay and Gobi ibex. Vadim rounded out his 2009 hunting calendar when he took a mid-Asian ibex in Kazakhstan in November.

In April 2010, Vadim hunted in Austria and was able to bag an Alpine ibex and an Alpine chamois. The next hunting trip Vadim took to get to the Capra World Slam started in March 2012 when he got a Himalayan ibex from northern Pakistan, and then he traveled down to New Zealand and got the chamois and the tahr for his efforts. This actually brings Vadim to a total of 13 Capras, and we certainly hope he will continue after these mountain creatures.

Vadim Gomzyakov (Russia) hunted in Russia during 2008 and was able to bag this Kuban (Western) tur.