

Mark Hampton (MO) is now up to 17 different species of sheep after taking a Kamchatka snow sheep in Russia on August 14, 2014. Mark had this to report about his hunt:

I had the pleasure of bumping into and visiting with several GSCO members while traveling in Kamchatka. I also had the good fortune to share this hunt with Hungarian Antal "Tony" Beck, an experienced sheep and mountain hunter. We experienced inclement weather throughout our trip but managed to take nice rams. I took a 10-year-old ram on the sixth day of our hunt. He wasn't exceptionally long, but supported 15½" bases. Kamchatka is a beautiful place.

Mark Hampton (MO) took this Kamchatka snow sheep in Siberia, Russia on August 14, 2014.